

CROW FEATHERS, RED OCHRE, GREEN TEA

GWENDOLYN MORGAN

“Gwendolyn Morgan’s poems celebrate her intimacy with the natural world, which is rendered with luminous clarity. Although wholly grounded in the earth, she is primarily a poet of the spiritual life. The quiet subtlety and reverence of her language belies the tough, forthright inquiries that lie below. She’s a poet who asks the big questions, and her answers are full of grace and surprise.”

—Chase Twichell, author of Horses Where the Answers Should Have Been

“In her first collection of poems, Gwendolyn Morgan begins with nature and spirit—an homage to beauty and a gratitude for grace. Then enters illness, war, suicide, a child’s accidental death reminding us that even buoyed by spirit we swim in a sea of loss. But it’s not all loss. There’s a crow flying through the sky of these poems, pestering the mourning doves and most of the other birds, all with wings.”

—David W. Romtvedt, author of Certainty

GWENDOLYN MORGAN learned the names of birds and wildflowers and inherited paint brushes and boxes from her grandmothers. With a M.F.A. in Creative Writing from Goddard College, and a M.Div. from San Francisco Theological Seminary, she has been a recipient of writing residencies at Artsmith, Caldera and Soapstone. Her poems appear in: Calyx, Dakotah, Kalliope, Kinesis, Manzanita Quarterly, Mudfish, Tributaries: a Journal of Nature Writing, VoiceCatcher, Written River as well as anthologies and other literary journals. She is a member of the Unitarian Universalist Society of Community Ministries and is a board certified chaplain with the Association of Professional Chaplains. She serves as the manager of interfaith Spiritual Care at Legacy Salmon Creek Medical Center. Gwendolyn and Judy A. Rose, her partner, share their home with Abbey Skye, a rescued Pembroke Welsh Corgi.
